CLEAN SLATE GIVEN MELLON BY COMMITTEE

Eight-to-Five Vote Exonerates Secretary of Violation of 100-Year-Old Law

MORRIS REPORT REJECTED

Contest Likely To Be Transferred to Senate's Floor Monday

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, was given a clean slate by the Senate committee on the Mellon report, which was rejected by an eight-to-five vote.

The committee first refused to order an investigation into Mellon's alleged violation of the 100-year-old law against accepting gifts from foreign governments.

Four members of the committee were absent when the vote was taken, and it was stated they would be polled Monday and that their votes would not change the result.

The question of obtaining more information about Mellon's corporate activities, the vote was 5 to 3 in favor of the Mellon report.

Senators Borah, Republican of Idaho, and Norris, Republican of Nebraska, favoring a committee investigation, were defeated.

Senators Clegg, Republican of Ohio, and Overman, Democrat of North Carolina, voted to reject the report.

Senators Clegg, Overman, and Norris opposing it.

BOYS' WEEK PRIZES TO BE PRESENTED IN FINAL EVENT TONIGHT

Greenwood School To Carry Away Major Share of Awards Handed Out in Court of Honor at Junior High Auditorium

When Marion's observance of National Boys' week comes to a close tonight with the awarding of all the prizes at the annual Handing Out of Boy Scouts' court of honor to be held at Central Junior High school auditorium at 8 o'clock, Greenwood school will carry away most of the trophies that were put up for competition during the week.

Yesterday afternoon the East Side school further added to its already long list of laurels when Emerson Stumbo, a student in the seventh grade, won the kite tournament and the Jolly Van Atta trophy for his school.

Eight Kites Entered
There were eight kites entered in the tournament yesterday, which was in charge of A. A. Van Atta, part owner of the trophy. The winning boy, who won a "Jolly Van" kite, won first place in the distance and pull and third in workmanship. This gave him a total of 11 points on the basis of five points for first, three points for second and one for third.

Angelo Luzzaglio, of St. Mary's, won second place when he took first in workmanship, second in distance and third in pull. Gina Obenauer, of Greenwood, was third with second places on pull and workmanship and a third on distance. Stumbo resides at 407 Wilson av.

The last day of boys' week in Marion was to be featured by the dog parade to start at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the Y. M. C. A. A dog collar and dog harness will be awarded the entrants who in the judges' opinion best typify the American boy and his dog.

Court of Honor Program
John H. Clark will act as chairman at the court of honor tonight, at which time in addition to the awarding of all the trophies won in boys' week, Harry Edsall, a member of Boy Scout troop 11 will be given special recognition as the Boy Scout in Marion who has earned the most scout awards of any.

Parents of Martin Rife, 17, of Marion, ministerial student at Wooster college who has been missing since last Saturday afternoon, were returning to Marion this afternoon without information concerning the whereabouts of their son, after making a personal investigation of the circumstances surrounding his disappearance.

Mrs. Rife told newspapermen in Wooster she was convinced her son had left Pittsburgh Saturday with the intention of coming to Wooster, probably "hitch hiking," the method he used to go to Pittsburgh. Friday she offered the theory that he had met with trouble after he was "kicked up" by some autoist in his return trip. Rife was carrying at least $20 at the time of his disappearance.

Make Inquiries Enroute
Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Rife, in returning from Pittsburgh to Wooster, stopped at every town on the route making inquiries of hospitals and police, but having no clue Mrs. Rife also said she knew no reason why her son should "voluntarily disappear," a theory first advanced by Pittsburgh officials.

Police of two states and several radio stations were still being used today in an effort to locate the boy. Officials of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. are also being used.

Fish Can Hear
More Berlin Riots
Alas! The Farmer
Garter, Chrysanthemum

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PROF. KARL VON FRISCH of Munich university says fish can hear.

On the garter is written in old French, "Shame on him who thinks evil." The British King is supposed to have picked up a lady's garter on the battlefield floor and fastened it on his own leg.

The Mikado gave Prince Henry the highest Japanese decoration, the Grand Order of the Chrysanthemum, more dignified than the garter.

Uncle Sam has nothing to give those foreigners, except money.

BOSTON Bar Association yesterday voted $45 to 207 for a repeal of the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act, and resolved that every state should regulate its own drinking.

Millions of farmers, millions of Methodists, many other millions would be converted before anything can be done.

To talk about taking prohibition out of the Constitution is talking nonsense.

Commissioners Let Three Contracts for Jobs Totalling $22,417

NEXT LETTING MONDAY

Will Be for Surface Treating of 75 Miles of Highway

First contracts for road improvements in the county this year were awarded yesterday afternoon by the board of county commissioners. Contracts for three roads were awarded. The total cost of the roads will be $22,417.

The roads for which contracts were awarded are the Latta-Green Camp rd. in Bowling Green township, the Prospect-Upper Sandusky rd. in Prospect township and the Waldo-Fulton rd. in Waldo township. The contracts specify that work must be started on the three projects by June 1 and completed by Sept. 1.

The second step in the county road program for the summer will be taken Monday when the board of commissioners opens bids for surface treating about 75 miles of county roadway will be surface treated this year. This is an increase of 25 miles over last year, when 50 miles were repaved.

Contract Awards
Contract for the construction of the Latta-Green Camp rd. was awarded to J. M. Hamilton, of Marion, at a bid of $7,263.70. The engineer's estimate of the cost of the project was $9,595.91. The section to be improved is 1,163 feet in length and will be constructed of water-bound macadam.

BEETHAM'S RETURN ANXIOUSLY AWAITED

Lancaster Prosecutor Says He'll File Additional Charges Against Little

By International News Service
With the Loran "Hippocampus" already "officially" dead, and the Lancaster "women-vine-dog" case threatening momentarily to pass into oblivion, the return of State Probation Commissioner R. H. Beetham to Columbus was being anxiously awaited today.

Beetham, who is expected to reach the capital city some time late today or early tomorrow, will take over the reins of the probe in the Lancaster "affair," and if the dry commissioner acts with the swiftness, yet deliberation, for which he is noted, the case will probably be history by this time Monday.

Despite the statement of Russell Cunningham, county prosecutor at Lancaster, that he was preparing to file additional charges against Ed Little, suspended Dayton dog agent, who was arrested and then released on charges of contributing to the delinquency of 16-year old Helen ("Belle") Conrad, it appears now that Cunningham will have a hard time to substantiate that declaration or any charges that he might file.

Meanwhile a search in three counties, Franklin, Fairfield and Hocking, is being conducted for Crystal Getz, 23-year-old Logan divorcee. Cunningham declared that testimony from her would result in the filing of charges against Little.

It was pointed out, however, that Turn to page 5

BUSSEY ARRESTED AS MATERIAL WITNESS

Prosecutor Builds Up Premeditation Theory Against Earle Peacock

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 4.—Eugene Bussey, the man who "kissed and told," was under arrest on a material witness charge today, the latest sequel to the killing and cremation of Dorothy Peacock by her husband, Earle Peacock.

Bussey was taken into custody at the Hotel Biltmore in New York a few hours after District Attorney Frank A. Coyne had stated his belief that the Johns Hopkins university student's story was of no importance.

Bussey had related stories of "peeing parties" with Peacock's wife before she was slain and burned by the jealous husband.

Coyne believes he has obtained two important admissions from Peacock, that will strengthen the premeditation theory now being built up against the young lodge expert.

Peacock admitted that he lured his wife to their Mt. Vernon apartment and struck her after the head one minute after she entered, Coyne said, thus nullifying his previous story that he had struck her in a moment of jealous rage.

TWO EXPLOSIONS KILL SIX PERSONS

Mother, Infant Children Die in Dayton Fire Following Blast

DAYTON, May 4.—The toll in the fire which destroyed the Carder home at Lebanon last night, reached three today, when Mrs. Martha Carder, 31, died of burns she suffered during the conflagration that followed a real range explosion.

The other dead are Willard, 2, and Harold, 2 months, who were burned to death. The father, Frank Carder, was seriously burned.

Paul Carder, 5, is not expected to live.

The fourth child in the Carder family, Frances, 6, escaped unharmed when she fled after the explosion.

Her father, working in the yard, rushed into the then flame-engulfed home, and through heroic efforts managed to temporarily save his wife and one child.

Three Children Are Killed in Pennsylvania

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 4.—Three children were burned to death and their mother and another child suffered serious burns when the explosion of a gasoline stove set fire to their home here today.

The dead, all trapped in an upper room of the house, were Dorothy Stevens, 14, Billie, 13, and Virginia, 9, children of William Stevens.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens and a small daughter, Eleanor, 4, were badly burned. Mrs. Stevens fled from the home with her clothing ablaze, but neighbors succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

SET START OF PAVING WORK FOR NEXT WEEK

Contractors Arrange for Opening Center St. Construction Project

AWAIT BOND MONEY

Funds Expected Soon for Financing Improvement Program

Construction work on the improvement of West Center st. is expected to start next week, as soon as the money from bond issues covering the proposed improvement is in the hands of city officials.

There is a faint possibility of a last minute obstacle preventing receipt of the bond money but city officials are virtually sure that there will be no delay from this cause.

Pennsylvania av. and Homer st. are also slated for new pavings and 12th Heights will get new sewers as a result of contracts temporarily awarded by a meeting of the city board of control about a month ago.

Plans are to rebuild West Center st. from Main st. to Oak st. with the same surface now in use between Oak st. and Davis st. and build a sewer and larger sewer system along the same section, and to construct new electric car tracks in place of the present tracks.

Legislation is now in the course of completion, which, if passed, will continue probably the same surface from Main st. to Baker st., making Center st. a continuous new brick surface from Baker st. to Davis st.

Contractors' Plans
The probable course of contractors, as indicated today by officials, will be to close the north side of Center st. from Oak to Main st., while sewers and electric car tracks are built on the north side and then the north side of the section will then be paved and opened for use while the south side is closed for construction.

The center st. construction job will be done by D. Drake & Son, local contractor.

BANDIT IS KILLED BY GAS STATION OWNER

Two Men Attempting To Break Into Office Surprised by Proprietor

ARRON, O., May 4.—E. K. Matlison, 41, proprietor of a gasoline station, on the outskirts of this city, added another notch to the stock of his long-barreled shotgun early today when he shot and fatally wounded William Bishop, 19, who was surprised in the act of burglarizing his station.

Matlison lives a short distance from the station and was aroused early this morning by the burglar alarm. Making his way to his place of business, he told police, he surprised Bishop and another man in the act of breaking in. He fired once, the charge hitting Bishop in the head and shoulder. Bishop died three hours later in City hospital. The other burglar escaped.

Matlison thwarted an attempt by five men to hold up his place five years ago. With the same shotgun he wounded four of the men and held them captive until police arrived, on that occasion.

Earth Shocks Occur in Northeastern Persia; Victims in 3 Villages

LONDON, May 1.—A series of violent earthquakes in northeastern Persia are believed to have killed 1,000 persons, according to unconfirmed reports printed in Moscow and cabled to London today.

Most of the victims were said to be residents of three villages near Turkmenistan.

The Moscow Soviet authorized the Turkmen authorities at Samarkand to rush aid over the border to the quake zone.

The shocks centered in the mountains in the northern part of Khorezan between the Heri Rud river and the Caspian sea.

At the same time the Brooklyn Daily Eagle published the following editorial:

"When Frank E. Gannett, controlling the Eagle and 15 other newspapers, accepted in perfectly good faith a loan of approximately $2,700,000 from the International Paper Co., which acted in equally good faith, it was because the loan could be had at terms better than were available in the open market. BODY FOUND HANGING FROM CELL WINDOW

Husband Slayer Uses Strip of Blanket To Commit Suicide

LEAVES FAREWELL NOTE

Asks Forgiveness in Message Addressed to Husband's Relatives

Mrs. Stella Mae Johnson, charged with the murder of her husband, Hal R. Johnson, ended her life by hanging in her cell in the county jail this morning. Her body was found shortly after 8 o'clock and she is thought to have been dead for more than an hour.

A strip torn from her blanket caused death by strangulation. The neck was not broken. One end of the blanket was tied around a bar to the cell window. The other end was tied loosely around the woman's neck. It is thought that after arranging the noose she stepped from the edge of her cot.

Although the first indication of the death of the jail had that the woman planned self-destruction was when she was found hanging in her cell, an investigation revealed that the act might have been planned for some time.

Broke Cell Window

Shortly after being incarcerated in the jail a few hours after the fatal shooting of her husband on the morning of April 22, Mrs. Johnson broke both panes of glass in her cell window. Rather than replace the glass, which Sheriff John A. Francis felt would again be broken, the woman was supplied with additional clothing for her bed and body.

The rope made from a strip of blanket was tied to the middle bar of the narrow cell window, just above a cross bar. Mrs. Johnson's feet were barely touching the floor.

The dead woman was found by Mrs. Francis, wife of the sheriff. Mrs. Francis had gone to the woman's cell about 8 o'clock to give her clean clothing. In the dim light of the cell she could see the prisoner, apparently standing by the window.

Mrs. Francis spoke to the woman, but was not alarmed when she failed to receive an answer. The sheriff's wife stated today that Mrs. Johnson had a habit of refusing to answer when spoken to.

Sheriff Summoned

Mrs. Francis continued the conversation through the narrow opening in the cell door and, in a moment, discovered that the prisoner was hanging from the end of the blanket rope. She called the sheriff, who cut the rope and placed the woman on the cot. The sheriff said this morning that her hands and face had then turned blue.

Dr. M. V. Murphy, who was called immediately, said that the woman had been dead for more than an hour. Dr. B. D. Osborn, county coroner, stated that death was due to strangulation.

Mrs. Johnson was first seen this morning by Emma Parker, colored, a prisoner in an adjoining cell who was working on a line for illegal possession of liquor. Mrs. Parker, according to her story, was aroused about 8 o'clock by a noise in Mrs. Johnson's cell.

Mrs. Parker went into a narrow hallway running past the row of cells. When Mrs. Parker looked through the opening in the cell door she saw Mrs. Johnson standing by her cot holding her hand on the back of her head. In response to an inquiry Mrs. Johnson said that she had been dressing and had fallen from her cot. When she said that she had not been hurt Mrs. Parker returned to bed.

Breakfast Taken to Cell
A few minutes after this a prison attendant took Mrs. Johnson's breakfast to her. She was then standing by the window and made no move when the food was placed on the ledge at the cell door opening.

Sheriff Francis believes that the woman first attempted to end her life when Mrs. Parker was aroused by the commotion in Mrs. Johnson's cell. It is thought that the knot in the rope around her neck slipped as she stepped from the cot.

Careful preparations for the hanging were made by the woman before she placed the fatal noose around her neck. A towel had been tied across the upper window. A newspaper covered the lower opening. It is thought that these precautions were taken to prevent discovery by occupants of the Kumbort hotel, a short distance from Mrs. Johnson's cell window.

A search made by Mrs. Francis through the woman's belongings revealed a strip of blanket, resembling Turn to page 5

Just Things
BY EDNA S. DUTTON
Comes into Its Own
THIS church family, which for seasons has been wont to blurb its own as possible under its big gavel, would certainly come out into the wide open spaces if it could see its rating on the menu card this spring. Two bits a portion, even after you put your spectacles on. It certainly is a vindication of the times when the forebears of this year's vintage crystallized with humiliation at the profane apologies which were forthcoming from the hostess when company came unexpectedly and rubarb was the dish de resistance.

Why the Weather?
THIS weatherman certainly has worked life for the sun and worshippers for the last two weeks. How can any one ever hope to acquire that enviable sun-kissed skin with the "mercy" hovering around freezing or the rain coming down in sheets. And folks with new spring wardrobes must blend their tears with the rain when day after day the lovely new duds must hang in the closet, for who gets an inspiration to doll up and go places from this particular brand.

Church Suppers
THIS spring and one's mind turns to commencement exercises, sweet girl graduates, banquets, housecleaning, church suppers and what not. Church suppers intrigue the folk who wear collars on their elbows on the china hot counters, most. And what an array of goodies to tantalize inner man? It looks like the poor culinary cases try to be good and the good ones try to be better. For there's nothing one feels like passing by. I attended on the current week, and after the main go, one had their choice of pie or ice cream and cake. It was like trying to decide which you wanted most when you were a kid, the nickel or the ride on the merry-go-round, so I did just what everybody else at the table did, took both of them.

FEAR UNAVOIDABLE, EVANGELIST SAYS
Woman Preacher Points to Penalties of Sin; Four Answer Altar Call
A large congregation heard Mrs. Alma Brougher Hughes, evangelist at Calvary Evangelical church, when she preached last night on "Under the Blood." Four responded to the altar call.

In her sermon, Mrs. Hughes said: "There are a lot of folks today who would tell us we don't need to fear, it is not intellectual, we should be brave, to go ahead and not develop even fear of God. We need to fear the wrath of God. The sad thing is that there are too many folks who have forgotten the awfulness of sin. Sin is just as black as it ever was. It will blight the home, ruin the character and mar your life just as much as it ever would. We need to fear what God and fail to have the blood applied to our hearts."

"People would like to have you round off the corners when you are preaching the gospel of Christ, but when you are preaching the gospel you are preaching something four square and you can not round off the corners and smooth it down, make it easier than it is. If your experience won't stand the test of the Word here, it won't stand the test of the judgment bar of God and you had better get things fixed up and get on speaking terms with God where all your sins are under the blood."

Sunday morning Mrs. Hughes will deliver a sermon, telling her experience when she was called to preach at 11 years of age.

Mrs. Dorothy Turner, teacher, Naomi Croy, Beulah and Wilma Hart, Mary and Opal Walters and Esther Spano, were members present. Very Reasonable
Our ambition is and always has been to render an eminently superior service at a cost no greater than one would pay for ordinary service.

We believe, from the comments we hear, and the reputation we have attained, that we have been rather successful in doing what we set out to do. Here cost is a matter of one's own desire, and service is unexcelled.

Comes into Its Own
THIS church family, which for seasons has been wont to blurb its own as possible under its big gavel, would certainly come out into the wide open spaces if it could see its rating on the menu card this spring. Two bits a portion, even after you put your spectacles on. It certainly is a vindication of the times when the forebears of this year's vintage crystallized with humiliation at the profane apologies which were forthcoming from the hostess when company came unexpectedly and rubarb was the dish de resistance.

Why the Weather?
THIS weatherman certainly has worked life for the sun and worshippers for the last two weeks. How can any one ever hope to acquire that enviable sun-kissed skin with the "mercy" hovering around freezing or the rain coming down in sheets. And folks with new spring wardrobes must blend their tears with the rain when day after day the lovely new duds must hang in the closet, for who gets an inspiration to doll up and go places from this particular brand.

Church Suppers
THIS spring and one's mind turns to commencement exercises, sweet girl graduates, banquets, housecleaning, church suppers and what not. Church suppers intrigue the folk who wear collars on their elbows on the china hot counters, most. And what an array of goodies to tantalize inner man? It looks like the poor culinary cases try to be good and the good ones try to be better. For there's nothing one feels like passing by. I attended on the current week, and after the main go, one had their choice of pie or ice cream and cake. It was like trying to decide which you wanted most when you were a kid, the nickel or the ride on the merry-go-round, so I did just what everybody else at the table did, took both of them.

FEAR UNAVOIDABLE, EVANGELIST SAYS
Woman Preacher Points to Penalties of Sin; Four Answer Altar Call
A large congregation heard Mrs. Alma Brougher Hughes, evangelist at Calvary Evangelical church, when she preached last night on "Under the Blood." Four responded to the altar call.

In her sermon, Mrs. Hughes said: "There are a lot of folks today who would tell us we don't need to fear, it is not intellectual, we should be brave, to go ahead and not develop even fear of God. We need to fear the wrath of God. The sad thing is that there are too many folks who have forgotten the awfulness of sin. Sin is just as black as it ever was. It will blight the home, ruin the character and mar your life just as much as it ever would. We need to fear what God and fail to have the blood applied to our hearts."

"People would like to have you round off the corners when you are preaching the gospel of Christ, but when you are preaching the gospel you are preaching something four square and you can not round off the corners and smooth it down, make it easier than it is. If your experience won't stand the test of the Word here, it won't stand the test of the judgment bar of God and you had better get things fixed up and get on speaking terms with God where all your sins are under the blood."

Sunday morning Mrs. Hughes will deliver a sermon, telling her experience when she was called to preach at 11 years of age.

CLASS ENTERTAINED AT WHEELER HOME
Anna Dale Nixon and Evelyn Edwards were guests of the Fideles class of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church when it met last night at the home of Dorothy Wheeler, 465 Cherry st. A business session was followed by contests in which Esther Spano won one of the first awards. Refreshments were served the members and guests. Mrs. Dorothy Turner, teacher, Naomi Croy, Beulah and Wilma Hart, Mary and Opal Walters and Esther Spano, were members present. The next meeting of the class will be held June 7 at the home of Esther Spano, 501 Woodrow st.

anything else to do. I must infer that you wanted my services as a companion. Or would bodyguard be a correct term?"

"Nonsense!" snapped Mr. Craig. "I was pacing the floor with short, quick strides. Listen, Bell. I am paying you for your services, and paying you well. My reason for bringing you out here don't concern you in the least."

"Keep cool," drawled Bell. "Didn't mean any offense, you know. I've got no curiosity, no morals, no conscience. The only thing that concerns me is my fee after I've earned it. Keep your secrets to yourself. I'm not interested in them."

"Secrets?" Mr. Craig stopped short in front of the detective. "What do you mean?"

"Just what I said." The detective's eyes traveled coolly up and down the length of his client's tall, loose-jointed figure. "I don't know what you are afraid of, Craig, and I don't care. I'll see that nothing happens to you until you fire me off the job but I have no desire to pry into your secrets."

"What makes you think I'm afraid?"

"The way you act. Twice in the last hour you've looked under the bed. Three times you have looked behind the dressing cabinet. You have examined the bolt on the door five times, and the fastenings on the shutters an equal number of times. I've been keeping count. You haven't been able to relax for one minute since I got dark. If that isn't acting like a scared man, I don't know what is."

Mr. Craig scowled darkly, turned away, and threw another log on the fire which William had kindled just before he brought dinner to the room. The flames were crackling lustily, spreading a pleasant warmth over the room. Beside the grate was a stack of logs big enough to keep up a roaring fire throughout the night. Mr. Craig contemplated the pile with satisfaction. As Green had pointed out, the fireplace was the only possible way for an intruder to sneak into the room. A constant fire would frustrate any such attempt. The thought of this final precaution tended to put Mr. Craig in better humor.

"You are a clever man, Bell," he admitted, "but your deductions don't always do you credit. If I was really afraid, as you insinuate, I wouldn't be likely to remain here. I would make different arrangements to insure my safety. A trip abroad, for instance."

"Perhaps. It has probably occurred to you, though, that it's a small world we live in. Where one man goes, another man can follow."

"It's bad business to be bound by enemies. Some of them stick to a scent like a bloodhound."

"That may be so," said Mr. Craig dryly, "but I'm aware that I said anything about enemies."

Bell chuckled. "There was no need of that. My eyes are pretty good. But don't worry, Craig. This room seems to be barricaded like a fortress. If anybody breaks in, which isn't likely, I'll know how to handle him." He slipped his lip as if to indicate the location of a weapon.

Mr. Craig, ignoring him, fell to pacing the floor. His hands were clasped behind his back, and the long, thin, white fingers twitched spasmodically. Bell watched him with an expression of tolerant amusement.

"Must be awful to have a troublesome conscience," he remarked in his usual drawl. "Don't you wish you were like me, Craig? I have no conscience at all. I suppose that's what makes me useful to you?"

"Why do you say that?"

"It's pretty evident, isn't it? There are lots of detectives in little old New York that are as straight as a fagpole. Most of 'em are, in fact. But you didn't send for one of them, did you, Craig? You sent for Harry Bell, who is supposed to be crooked clean through, and who's got no reputation at all except that he gets things done." He gave a low, musing chuckle. "That's it, Craig. I got things done, and if the fee suits me, I don't turn up my nose at any kind of job. Don't ask foolish questions, either, but keep my business to myself. That's the kind of man you need—eh, Craig?"

He cocked an eye, chuckled again, and started to munch a sandwich. Mr. Craig, bending his long frame over him for a moment, regarded him with an uneasy flicker in his eyes, then shrugged and turned away.

"You're talking rot!" he snapped.

"Sure," agreed Bell gleefully, "but we've got to talk, haven't we? You don't seem to be inclined for bed so it's up to me to entertain you. Got to earn my fee somehow. As you know, I never tackle a case unless I get a retainer of five hundred. In this case it will be a thousand."

"Highway robbery!"

Bell laughed and helped himself to another sandwich. "You can afford it, Craig. If your life is in danger—"

"I never said anything about my life being in danger."

"If your life is in danger," pursued Bell complacently, "a thousand isn't much to pay for saving it. You're a good many times a millionaire, according to Broadway. I'm only getting a very small percentage of the cash value of your life. Fair enough, eh?"

Mr. Craig did not reply, but looked at his watch. It lacked only a few minutes of 12. The Gray Phantom's messenger was to call at midnight according to the letter that had come that morning, and William had received instructions to order him off the premises when he came.

If he proved punctual the doorbell would probably ring in two or three minutes.

He tossed another log on the roaring fire then turned and saw Bell placidly eating his sandwich. His stringy hair, the color of fire brick, furnished an odd mounting for his swarthy face. Despite his dignified airs, Mr. Craig was glad of the man's company. It would have been a dreary and nerve-racking vigil without some one to share it with him. Despite his feeling of security, he wished fervently that the night was over. Notwithstanding all his precautions, he had an unpleasant recollection of the threat in the last paragraph of the Phantom's letter.

He continued pacing the floor, now and then glancing nervously into the shadowy corners of the room, where the glare from the chandelier did not reach. He could not understand the dull, shapeless forebodings he felt. It was certain that no enemy could be concealed in the room, for he had carefully explored every portion of it since the vigil began, and it was equally certain that no one could ea-

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Saturday. I was moping the ashes after I had let Jubilee down and I heard Jubilee barking and looking around and the ashes blew all over me, and he was under the back step, so when I had shook myself I went to see what he had got, and it was so kind dark under there that I couldn't see very good at first, and when I did see, there was the turtle hucked into the corner and his mouth open and looking mad. So I picked a stick in his mouth and he closed down on it and I pulled him out, and I took the stick and fastened it to the clothesline with a clothespin and let him bang there while I milked the dumazed brutes.

Then when I had fed my face and cleaned out the barn like I have to do every Saturday whether it needs it or not, he was still hanging there, and my mother said that a turtle is of a very low order of intelligence, and I think she meant that a turtle is not so very smart. But women aren't so very bright. A turtle is a turtle and has sense enough to know enough to do what turtles do. If he was smart he might try to do what cows do or human beings do and that wouldn't get him anything. So he just does what a turtle is supposed to do and mope his business.

I left him hanging when we went to the vacant lot to gather up our cows to take them to the pasture. When we got there we saw some smoke curling up from back of the barn, and we told our dogs to lay down and we played we were Indians and crawled up on our bellies and looked over, and there were Freddie and Youniss and Maggie the girl that got fascinated on her log, and they had on their bay scout suits and they had made a fire and they were all sitting there with violet and forget-me-nots and a basket of weenies and things all around them. And when I seen the Last Day of Tripe, reaching out with a stick trying to hook their basket I gave a warlike shout that almost made them jump in the river. Then I seen Freddie had a little looking glass and had been watching us all the time, and she grabbed the stick from the Last Day of Tripe, and when he was going back up the bank on his hands and feet and his pants was tighter than his skin she took the stick in both hands like she was buttering a hamer, and let him have it. We didn't see the place till we branched the row home at night, but it stuck out all the way across him as thick as my finger and was still the redder wallow I ever looked at. We et what they brought and got a whole basket of violet and forget-me-nots. There are going to be lots of blackberries and dewberries this year, and it won't be so long now till snakes and frogs and variation are back again, and I wouldn't care if it would stay summer all the time. I like it.

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affection

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge surprised Anna in the Act of Griefing

"Till room which I entered after directing Mrs. Tress to keep everyone away was so dimly lighted that at first I could not distinguish the objects in it. All the curtains had been closely drawn, so if the occupant could not bear the light. But I had come in woodlessly, and the low sobbing to which I had listened in the next room went on with no interruption. Presently the grieving occupant of the room thought herself alone."

I stood motionless just inside the door while I accustomed my eyes to the dim light. Presently in a high-backed chair directly across from me I saw Anna Schmidt with her hands covering her face, her thin body away with sobbing as she was trying to keep unheard. Even in her grief the strict discipline of her class and life held her upright. She was not slumped against the chair in the posture which most women would have assumed, but sat stiffly erect.

With the fear that I would startle her strong upon me, I slipped back behind the partly opened door, and rapped upon its panel. I heard a sharply caught breath, and armed with the knowledge that she would not be unduly startled by the intrusion, I pushed open the door and crossed swiftly to her side. I did not intend to give her a chance to refuse my entrance.

Her hands were still before her face, and from behind them came a hoarsely croaked command.

"Go away, Miss Tress."

With the determination to risk everything on a bold stroke, I put my hands upon the quivering ones covering her face, and took them down quickly. Bloodshot, startled eyes, heavy with tears and set in the anguished white mask of a face stared up at me, and I spoke in quick reassurance.

"Listen to me," I said slowly but with emphasis. "My mistress, her Royal Highness, the Princess Olina, of Transylvania—I wondered whether I were handling the titles correctly—" "Will not marry the young man you fear. I promise you that. I shall see to it that she does not."

I thrust from me the disquieting thought that I was promising something which I might not be able to perform, and watched the expression in the eyes of the woman opposite me change from despair to tremendous hope almost so faint that it was plain she was basing by grave doubts of me.

"Who—are—you?" she whispered, and I did not wonder that she did not recognize me. I had seen her but two or three times during Princess Olina's tenure of The Larches, and on one of those occasions she had been an ill as to be oblivious of everything save the presence of the young mistress she adored.

"I am Mrs. Graham," I answered quickly. "Your neighbor. The princess is now in my house. I have come to tell you that I will take care of her until I can send her safely to you or to her mother, Queen Olga."

Purposely I spoke my words slowly as if to a child, and the convulsive sobbing lightened, then ceased. I loosened her hands and put one of my handskerchiefs into them. She wiped the tears from her cheeks and beamed eagerly toward me.

"No, no," I assured her. "He is nothing to me. But he is a good boy." A sudden whimsical thought struck me. I took her hand in mine with a gesture that was a bit melodramatic. "Will you promise to keep a secret? If I tell you something I think will please you?" I asked.

"You—know—then—that—she—" She checked herself and looked at me, suddenly terrified.

"I know everything," I told her emphatically, "and I know that Prince George."

"Ah! you know that, too," she exclaimed and then broke into a torrent of words in her own tongue. I waited until she realized that I did not understand a word of her harangue, and then lifted my hand.

"Please," I said, "tell me slowly in English, if you can."

She looked at me steadily for a second or two, then spoke haltingly.

"They must marry Princess Olina and Prince Georges. They love each other once in Transylvania. She is a good queen. She must not send him away. She must not marry this—this—"

She broke again into words of her own tongue which I guessed were anything but complimentary to Noel, checked herself, and looked at me fully.

"This—Noel—your brother?" she asked.

Regrets Passed To Tom

Will Says Even Man Who Threw Bottle and Missed Regrets It; Rogers Offers Own Idea on How To Prevent War

—BY WILL ROGERS

Everybody was regretful about it.

ALL I know is just what I read in the papers. Now let's see what has taken place since I commenced with you last week. Tom Hellen lost his encounter with the "Hearby." Tom wanted the Senate to go on record that it condemned the action of the Town of Hellen, Mass., for not paying strict attention to one of its subjects. Well, he could have come nearer getting the Senate to go on record that they sympathized with Hellen. For Lord the Town of Hellen only had to listen to one, while the Senate never gets over 'em. Well, anyhow this longwinded drawn-out thing afforded the one best line and laugh that has been pulled in there for this session. Senator Gillette of Mass. told Tom, "The State of Mass regrets it. The Town of Hellen regrets it. The Mayor regrets it. The Police regret it, and the Man that threw the bottle, and MISSED you, regrets it."

Well, from Relief would get a little help in between. Grandly would try to get some higher tariff on anything Manufactured in Pennsylvania. But Tom would hold the next day during the fall and say, "You're got to make this Country safe for United States Senators to speak in."

Real "Big" Man

Well, we finished our theatrical engagement up in Boston and are moving over to Philadelphia for a couple of weeks, then one week in Detroit and one more in Pittsburgh and then on the old Main and out "Where Men are beginning to be heard." We had some laughs in the Theater in Boston last week. One night I told Tom that I introduced him and his new bride, and then sitting near him was Charles Francis Adams, our new and very distinguished Secretary of the Navy, a real blue blood. The only living American that has had two American Presidents that he deceived from, John Adams, and John Quincy Adams. Then I introduced them to each other and Bob got up and went over and shook hands with Adams. It was a big laugh and applause, then I told the audience you wouldn't think after having the two men as great as these. One a Descendant of two Presidents and the other the greatest favorite that we ever produced, you wouldn't think we possibly could have a BIGGER man here tonight than either one of them, in fact, BIGGER than both of them put together. Well I just want to introduce you to the Giant of the Ringing show, and sure enough there he was. The Circus was to have opened there the next day. He was sitting in the back of a box and no one had noticed him. It was one of the biggest laughs I ever heard in a Theater. These Adamses and Loggers, and Lowells, they are just about the whole thing in the way of Tradition up there.

Keep 'Em at Home

Well I see where we have offered some plan at a Disarmament Conference over in Geneva and everybody is all excited about it, so I suppose we will be killed into entering into another sinking. We are just about to live down the humiliation of that last one in 22. I told the Secretary of our Navy right from the stage, that I wished we had the biggest Navy in the World, the biggest Army, and by all means the biggest Airplane force, but have it understood with the taxpayers that they are ONLY TO BE USED ON THE HOME GROUNDS. Now how in the world will you tell me is there a better way to prevent war than that, Be ready for it and stay at home. When they know they can't lick you they certainly are not coming any over here to try it. It applauded it, and I believe he thought it was alright. In fact it looks like the League of Nations could just about prevent war by deciding "Who starts a war." Well just have the League pass the following resolution: "We consider the first Nation that acts military foot on the other is the starter of the war." Now you put that on 'em, and they won't be in such a hurry to grab up a lot of men and start prancing into Belgium, or somewhere. Then they can be sure at each other as they want but they will know that the first one that invades the other is the starter of the war, and as long as each one will be waiting for the other to start it, why neither one will want to start the ultimate blow, so the first thing you know they will calmed down and meet on the line and have a drink. Personally I can't think of anything that would encourage a war more than for a couple of Nations to know that they Equal Navies. If you know your Navy is equal to the other fellow, you will always figure that your men are superior to theirs, so you are ready to go to any time with him. There is enough sportsmanship in every country to want if they knew they had an equal break to take a try at the other. So this old thing of regulating Navies so they are equal is the house.

They Eat Anyway

Did you ever notice how much more powerful it is all-around when our Marines are at home instead of prowling around? Why if we keep at home awhile, why we are liable to get out of the habit of waiting to send an away off ever time we heard that some little Nation was about to pull off a local Annapolis Revolution. I believe this fellow Hoover has been around the World so much that he won't think its any novelty to have them away off in all those places.

Say here is one that Coolidge pulled when someone was telling him about Mr Hoover moving the six White House snail-like horses away, and sending them back over to the Army Post. You know it had been reported how much this move of Hoover's would save, the feed and care of the horses, and when the fellow got through Coolidge said, "Guess they will quit waiting when they get to the Army Post." It is a matter of fact it didn't save anything, and also the Mayflower going out of Commission, the Government has to pay all those men just the same, they are all Navy men. They just as well be on the Mayflower as the "Robert R. Lee." We kinder thought Calvin might come down and see our show while in Boston, but I guess the prices scared him out. Authorities predict for the Future what DODGE BROTHERS OFFER TODAY

"The all-metal seamless body is the auto body of the future," George J. Mercer, consulting body engineer and chairman of the body division of the Society of Automotive Engineers, predicted at a meeting of the Cleveland Section of the S. A. E.—Automotive Daily News, February 12, 1929.

In the exclusive Mono-piece Body of the new Dodge Brothers Six, you find the identical type of design and construction to which leading automotive engineers point as "the body of the future."

Literally one-piece, the Mono-piece Body is positive proof against squeaks and rattles.

Even after thousands of miles of hardest usage it remains as tight, as firm and as noiseless as when new.

Providing an abundance of room with a new degree of grace, the Mono-piece Body is stylishly trim. Doors and windows are wide.

In fact, the Mono-piece Body, in every way, stamps the new Dodge Brothers Six as the herald of a new era of greater beauty, greater comfort and even greater dependability in motor car design and construction.

HAIRBREADTH precision and custom care
A demonstration reveals surpassing results due to Chrysler's finer standards

CHRYSLER, by applying new and ingenious methods of scientific efficiency, introduced to volume production the fine precision standards heretofore associated only with hand-built cars.

The man who buys a Chrysler Imperial, a Chrysler '75," a Chrysler '65," gets a car that is held to hairbreadth limits in every specification.

From raw material to finished product, an elaborate system of inspections and tests safeguards the finest kind of craftsmanship, and makes certain that every part scales to the ultimate decimal of its prescribed weight and dimension.

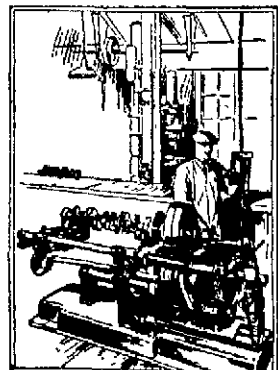

The extreme to which Chrysler invariably goes in protecting quality and accuracy is something unique in the field of big production.

So it is that Chrysler cars, as they take to the road, are in every particular as fine and faultless as modern science and expert human craftsmanship can make them.

And as the natural outcome of all this standardized care and precision, plus the genius of Chrysler engineering, there is a distinct difference in Chrysler performance that is wholly and lastingly delightful. Take a demonstration and learn the difference for yourself.

Adaptable To All Standard Types Of Architecture

Product of Upper Sandusky Plant Long Recognized in the East as Superior Quality Building Material, Now Coming into Its Own in This Locality

THE Wyandot brick is manufactured in Upper Sandusky, making a name for itself in Marion. A number of homes of distinct types of architecture are being built here this spring of this material.

The Wyandot has long been recognized in the east, which may be said to be the home of early American architecture, but due to the feeling, strongly expressed by the city fathers and an particularly true in the selection of building material, that fire holds are renewed, it is just now coming into its own in this locality.

The Wyandot Clay Products Co. claims for its brick a versatility seldom found in any one building material. It makes an all sand molded brick using the box mold, putting back to early colony days. Nine color ranges give the brick an adaptability to all of the standard types of architecture.

The accompanying photographs show three distinct types of architecture.

Colonial Design

Simply is the keynote of the Colonial house located in Columbus. Note the sturdiness of the wall, the fine proportions and the refinement of detail. The entrance, with its stately columns and wrought iron balcony, strikes a particularly delightful note. Utilizing Colonial brick was used in the construction of the walls and the colors are light red medium and deep red brown and under blue. In its setting of trees and shrubbery, this charming old home stands out as the English design in the home of B. E. Gooding at Lima, O. In color and tone this house is entirely different from the Colonial. Wyandot bricks in brown, tan, rose and lavender, blues give the wall a mellow and new in complete harmony with its design. Note the typical sweeping curve of the wall (the Tudor chimney) and the English thicket. Try creators add the final touch.

Use in Spanish Type

Still another range of brick was used in the Spanish type, a section of which is shown. This house is located at Dayton, O. A mix of ranges, or serving a general light tone, were used in its construction. Hand made tiles in a soft blend of colors floor the small patio. An interesting detail is the mitered entrance and the balcony above, with its tiled balustrade. In home building there is no greater essential than compatibility of design and building material. If a period of time is used with a material of long life, to a different era, much of the effect is lost. It was in fact, to who said: "The chief thing in art is that what you do shall be in tune."

The Wyandot Clay Products Co. makes a brick for every conceivable type of architecture. It makes no claim to be the extreme or bizarre. It is as its place in that great institution in the world—a home of enduring form.

TIME LIMIT SET ON LICENSE RENEWALS

Ohio Real Estate Dealers
Given Till June 1 To File
Applications

COLUMBUS, May 1—Real estate brokers and salesmen who expect to renew their real estate licenses will have to do so before June 1, according to information just given the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards by the board of real estate examiners. Requests for renewal of licenses received after that date will not be considered and it will be necessary for the applicant to file a new set of blanks and pay the initial fee of $10 for a broker and $2 for a salesman (the same as is required of all new applicants).

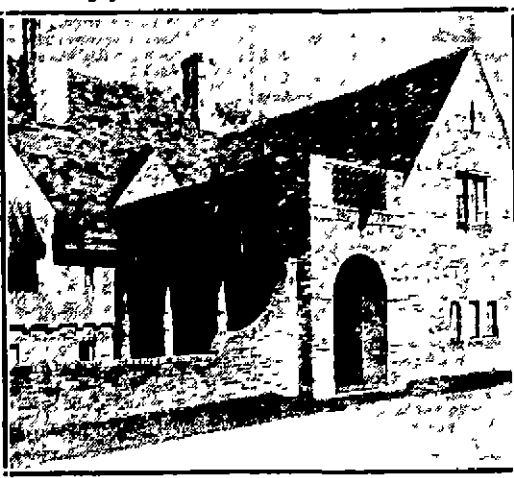

During March and April the real estate department issued a total of 1,771 licenses of which 2,631 were renewals. Applications are constantly being received by the department. It was stated by S. O. Leaky, secretary, and almost as many licenses were issued during April as there were in March, there being 1,048 credited to March and 1,840 for April.

The number of real estate salesmen increased during the last two months. Exceeded brokers 15 about two to one. There were 2,103 licenses issued to salesmen while only 1,317 went to brokers. In the same length of time 187 corporations were licensed and 77 partnerships.

The next meeting of the board of real estate examiners will be held at the courthouse in Mansfield the morning of May 7. The afternoon of the same day they will hold a hearing in the city hall at Massillon. A two-day session will also be held in Cleveland on the eighth and ninth. Evidence will be heard by the board on a number of complaints at these meetings. Leaky announced.

18 PERMITS ISSUED

Week's Building Total Here Mounts to $31,020

Eighteen building permits were issued last week by City Clerk S. H. Keller for construction work estimated to cost $31,020. The largest single item of the week was a $20,000 business building permit issued to the Henry True estate. This was for remodeling the store building formerly occupied by Klemmers. The smallest was for remodeling a garage at an estimated cost of $20.

Seven permits were issued for the construction of garages, ranging in value from $70 to $500. Two permits were issued for dwellings costing $3,000 and $3,200.

BANK CLEARINGS HIT HIGH FIGURE

Total for Week Is Largest Recorded Since First Week in April

Bank clearings last week were the highest since the first week in April, due primarily to the fact that the week includes the first few days of May. Clearings this last week ending Thursday reached $7,045.06, reports from the National City Bank & Trust Co. of its big headquarters show.

Wednesday and Thursday clearings brought the week's total to $10,000 mark. May 1 with total clearings of $12,140.10 was the largest single clearing since the first Thursday in April when clearings reached $12,821.91. This was the high point of the week. The low point was reached Tuesday when clearings dropped to $7,453.93.

FARM PROBLEMS

TO BE DISCUSSED
Methods of Making Agriculture Profitable on Conference Program

COLUMBUS, May 1—Farm land owners and others interested in the farm market situation in Ohio will get together at the Nell House in Columbus at 10 A. M. May 15 for an all day conference on farm brokerage problems and other questions bearing on the agricultural situation. C. C. Vinogradoff, Tiffin, chairman of the farm land division of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards, reports that all details of the program have been arranged and prospects point to one of the most constructive meetings in the history of the division.

The conference will be largely of a round table nature giving those in attendance unlimited opportunity to throw out the problems up for discussion. H. R. Moor, of the department of rural economics of Ohio State university, will be one of the principal speakers on the conference program.

What might be termed a program of achievement in successful farming will be one of the features of the meeting. Those who attend are asked to present a written account of the achievements of at least one successful farmer in his community. The division hopes to gather facts and information which will establish the fact that there is money to be made in farming and use this information to counteract the agricultural pessimism which is prevalent and to promote a better attitude of agricultural optimism. An invitation is extended not only to members of the association but to all others interested in the farm land market and the agricultural situation in general.

Along in years you can escape being called an old man by not saving much.

CHIRON AFTER U. S. SPEEDWAY LAURELS

Louis Chiron, champion driver of Europe for 1929, intrudes America in the International 500-mile automobile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30, in an attempt to be the first world's champion of the speedway. Chiron, who is 29, has arrived with a French De Lage car and a reputation for skill and daring on the track that is making Yankee stars look to their laurels. The dapper Frenchman wears a steel "crash" helmet, similar to the "tin hat" worn in the war, as a protection for his head in case of accident. "It saved my life in a wreck in France," Chiron explained through Louis Chevrolet, his coach and interpreter, while Chiron was showing his car to Cliff Durant, a star of the American tracks. Chiron will find plenty of competition on the Indianapolis track. Augmenting the Yankee stars will be Francesco Comotti, a young and wealthy Italian, and Chiron's rival on European tracks. Chiron came here to beat the Americans, but Comotti comes to defeat Chiron. It will be a race within a race.

MARION Y ENTERED IN DISTRICT MEETS

Local Tennis and Swimming Teams To Compete at Findlay, Lima

T. O. Rudolph and T. R. Cunningham represented the Marion Y. M. C. A. at the spring meeting of the physical committee of the Ohio Y. M. C. A. district of the Ohio Y. M. C. A. Association held at Findlay last night. Marion was entered in both the annual outdoor swimming meet and tennis tournament, which will be held this summer and fall. Mr. Cunningham, representing the local Y at the tennis committee meeting, voted to send two single courants and one double team to the tournament that will be held at Findlay on either Aug. 3 or 10. Eight towns were entered in the tennis meet.

Mr. Rudolph made a bid for Marion for the annual outdoor swimming meet but lost to Lima. The meet will be held probably on July 6 at the Lima outdoor swimming pool. Two divisions, one for boys over 16 and the other for all boys under 16 will be held. The entry fee will be $5 for a team of over five men or more and $1 for a single entry or team consisting of less than five men. Marion will enter teams in both the junior and senior class. Mr. Rudolph stated.

The different events for the senior class will be 50 yard free, 100 yard free, 100 yard back, 100 yard breast, 22 free style, fancy dive, 440 free style and relay. In the junior class the events will be 50 yard free, 100 yard free, 50 yard breast, 50 yard back, 220 free relay and diving. Girls entered in the swimming meet are Marion, Postoria, Lima, Tiffin, Toledo, and Findlay. Gold and silver medals will be given to the winning boys.

Entry fee in the tennis tournament is $5 per team. The trophies will be both individual and team awards for the Y. M. C. A. sponsoring the team. Louis Keller of Findlay was named chairman of the tennis tournament. It will be straight elimination with no seeding. Each player is required to furnish two tennis balls.

Better to be in the procession than to sit by the roadside and take no part.

MANY SPORT EVENTS GRACE COLLEGE BILL

Baseball, Track, Tennis and Golf Meets Are Scheduled

COLEMBUS, May 4—Ohio college teams are facing the most strenuous contests of the year, with baseball, track, tennis and golf events scheduled for today.

Dominating the track meets is the sixth annual Ohio relays, which will be participated in by entries from 22 Ohio colleges. Four dual meets are on the books: Akron at Case, Baldwin-Wallace at Hiram, Otterbein at Muskingum and Mt. Union at Western Reserve.

Miami, with its assumed right to first place in the Buckeye association baseball race, will be forced to prove its prerogative when the Red team tangles with Ohio Wesleyan in a double-header at Delaware today.

The Miami nine defeated Denison at Granville yesterday, 16 to 6, and three games in two days are not easily won. Cincinnati and Wittenberg, meeting today at Springfield, will be watching for a chance to gain ground on the Oxford team.

Northeast conference teams are active. Toledo goes to Bluffton, Findlay to Bowling Green and Delaware to Dayton. Three Ohio conference games are scheduled, Muskingum at Otterbein; Oberlin at Wooster and Western Reserve at Ohio Northern.

Other baseball games for Ohio college nines are Ohio State at Chicago, Slippery Rock, Pa., Normal at Ashland, Centre at St. Xavier and Ohio at Marietta.

The Buckeye's second Big Ten golf match will be with Northwestern at Scioto Country club here today. Kenyon golfers will meet St. John's of Toledo at Mt. Vernon.

Six tennis matches are scheduled as follows: Purdue at Ohio State, Capital at Muskingum, Toledo at Bluffton, Wittenberg at Ohio Wesleyan, Mt. Union at Oberlin and Findlay at Bowling Green.

Derby Facts

CHELSEA, Okla., May 4—Gusto Umek, of Italy, led C. C. Pyle's bunions into Chelsea from Miami, Okla., and Pete Gavazzi, England, continued to hold first place as the runners faced a 70-mile grand to Muskogee today.

Several of the runners are expected to drop out as the trek is the longest scheduled and is over hard cement.

The first five in elapsed time: Pete Gavazzi, England, 2:17:12.02; John Solo, Passaic, N. J., 2:19:30.32; Gusto Umek, Italy, 2:23:51.31; Paul Simpson, Burlington, N. C., 2:42:05.23; Sam Richman, New York, 2:43:25.55.

OHIO TEAMS AWAIT GOOD WEATHER; REDS TO OPEN UP IN EAST

Fans Look for Indians To Drop into Baseball After Washington Series

BY HOE ELLIOTT

WITH the Cincy Reds marking time in New York City, waiting for a chance to open their eastern trip with the Brooklyn Robins and the Indians preparing to face Walter Johnson's Washington outfit in a three game series, we find the tribe resting securely if not comfortably in seventh place, not so far from eighth, and the Reds leading the second division with a percentage of .117.

However, the Reds showed some real form in their four game series with the hard hitting Chicago Cubs. Cincinnati fans are getting very excited over the Redlegs. Up in Cleveland the boys are anything but excited except for the fact that the tribe might manage to win one game from the talented Senators during their three-day sojourn there. Betting odds seem to deny this with the "wise boys" offering plenty of money that Washington will not be in the cellar when they leave the northern Ohio city. This leaves but one conclusion, that the tribe is destined to seek the comforting solace of the basement berth.

The employees of Mr. Peckinpough have a little something to say and state it in no uncertain terms. That is that the eastern clubs are going to find anything but easy picking when they tackle the Indians on Dunn field during the next three weeks. In the past few years the tribe has offered but slim resistance to the clubs from the east and the seaboard unless considered it something of a vacation to visit the Dunn field lot. All this is going to be different unless Billy Evans and Roy Peckinpough are all wrong. Peck is expected to shoot Joe Shantz in the Senators in the first game of the series with Johnson giving the tribal hitters plenty to worry about in the form of living flinders, right handed de luxe.

The Reds tried to open their first eastern trip of the year yesterday, but failed to do so in the face of the combined efforts of King winter and old "Jap" Phyllis Jack Hendricks, who shot his ace, Red Lucas, at the Robins today while Robins has not decided who to send against the Red batters.

The Redlegs stay at the Brooklyn lot for four games and then travel over to play around with Bert Shotton's outfit of ball players in Quaker town. From there they will tackle the surprise package of the National league in Judge Earl Fuchs' Braves at Boston. This team, which was picked to finish no lower than eighth has been knocking the cover off Mr. Herdler's best baseballs and at the present time stand in front of the race with seven games won and only two lost.

This record according to the managers of the eastern teams will make a terrible drop when the Cubs, Reds, Cels, and Pirates attack the "henrity" collection of ball tossers.

WANTS 700 MUCH

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 4—Angel Hoffman, San Francisco promoter, today reported the demands of Ace Huddles were holding up the proposed match between "Wildcat" and Mickey Walker for the middleweight championship. Huddles, he said, wanted 20 per cent of the gate receipts or a guarantee of $25,000 if he wins. If he loses he wants $10,000. Hoffman said Jack Kearns was satisfied with the terms he offered Walker.
